Eileen Baker provides consulting services to schools, attorneys, and families specific to issues of deaf and hard of hearing children in a variety of educational settings. She also works directly with students Pre K-12 on strengthening their communication skills across academic disciplines while simultaneously addressing psycho-social implications of deafness pertaining to advocacy and well-being.

Eileen's professional experience in addition to having deaf parents and grandparents provides a greater understanding of this disability while ensuring compliance with federal, state and local mandates specific to equal access to programs and services.

She is a recipient of a Masters Degree in Education of the Deaf from Smith College and began her teaching career working with multi-cultural deaf children and their families at the Kendall Demonstration School at Gallaudet University in Washington, D.C. Eileen has also taught in the field of deaf education from pre-school through college, including the position of Adjunct Professor in Special Education at Southern Connecticut State University. She is proficient in Spanish, which provides the opportunity to reach a broad based population. Eileen serves as an educator, consultant and expert witness to Industry, Education and Government agencies both public and private including The National Institute of Corrections, The Federal Bureau of Prisons and school systems with expertise in issues surrounding hearing loss per the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act and the Department of Justice. She has presented workshops on related topics nationally and internationally and has had articles in published literature.
